

A speculative look into the future. In a planet where climate change has radically upended the normal relationship between human and environment, the most exciting consumer product we can own is a way to broadcast our consumption of clean air.

Life-Lung 2000

The simplicity of the design relies upon the natural symbiosis of human and plant. In a world of canned air, this cutting edge design takes us back to how things should be...

